USPA NEWS - There are Games that are, in fact, much more than Games.

  - Because their Stakes are those of Society.
  - Because each point won pushes back Stereotypes.
- 1 out of 2 Gamers is a Gamer. And yet Women represent only 6% of Esports People.

There are Games that are, in fact, much more than Games.

- Because they thwart Received Ideas.
  - Because their Stakes are those of Society.
  - Because each point won pushes back Stereotypes.
- 1 out of 2 Gamers is a Gamer. And yet Women represent only 6% of Esports People.

At ALDI, they make Commitments so that this New Generation of Players like the Others is no longer stigmatized. Because if Parity becomes Natural in Esport, Passion of the New Generations, it will also be so in Society.

By supporting the Creation of the "French Bees", the First Female Team "Vitality Team" and the "Women in Games" Movement, ALDI is addressing a New Generation of Gamers, one where Girls are concerned with Winning the Game in Progress and no longer with Winning Their Place.

ALDI is committed to promoting the Place of Women in Esports Because the World of Esport needs more Female Presence, ALDI has decided to support the Women In Games Association to change Mentalities. Working for Diversity in the Video Game Industry but also in that of French Esports, Women in Games supports Female Players every year with the Objective of Highlighting Female Talents on the Competitive Scene in France. Because there is no Lack of Players, but of Means.
