President Hollande commemorates cease fire of the war in Algeria on March 19

Sober ceremony at the Quai Branly

Paris, Washington DC, 29.03.2016, 17:36 Time

USPA NEWS - The greatness of a country is to recognize past mistakes and make peace memories, is looking to the future. That's what I try to make it last and peace together and live the Republic and long live France " said President Hollande ending his 20-minute speech at the ceremony in memory of March 19.

The greatness of a country is to recognize past mistakes and make peace memories, is looking to the future. That's what I try to make it last and peace together and live the Republic and long live France " said President Hollande ending his 20-minute speech at the ceremony in memory of March 19 Quai Branly.-----

The President wants a coat very well adjusted to the body, black, and black shoes. A solemn look in the image of this ceremony, the official memorial of 19 March. Many soldiers in outfits has both civilian and some in uniforms adorned their medals. Veterans, carry the top drag in French colours, proud to wear their medals to veterans, will put the odds of the Republican Guard, The band is preparing to receive the President who is also the head of the Army, intoning the national anthem "La Marseillaise" and other military partitions.-----

EW MINISTERS ATTENDED THE CEREMONY AMONG THE GUESTS

The ministers, Harlem Desir, Secretary of State for European Affairs, Alain Vidalès, Secretary of State for Transport
Jean-Marc Todeschini, Secretary of State to the Minister of Defence, responsible for Veterans Affairs and Memory.
Anne Hidalgo, The Mayor of Paris, Jean François Carenco, Prefect of the Ile de France, Jean François Carenco
Many deputies and senators, ambassadors and presidents of associations also responded to the invitation.

Logistics operations, odds, media and guests, in tents, are orchestrated by Tremollière Captain, who ensures that the journalists of the Elysee and those of the defense ministries work in the best conditions. The President finally arrived twenty minutes after the scheduled time, to file the wreath in honor of victims of the wars between France and Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia.-----

The President Hollande began to be run with military protocol of exercises for the year 2015 was unfortunately full of tragic events like the 11 January and the Republican March and a few months later, the multiple attacks of 13 November in Paris.

The memorial ceremony for the 130 victims of this national tragedy took place in the space of the Invalides.

The ceremony was very noticed by both French and foreign (the international press has widely covered the memorial). President Hollande had even shed tears when the statement of the 130 victims, the climax moment of this memorial so fresh in people's minds because France had forgotten times of war or acts of war memorial, for 70 years. The President Hollande had also said that it was the most dramatic event murderer that France is known for the past wars "-----

The President Hollande also wanted to mark this anniversary, engraving remembered the date of 19 March, which recalls the end of the war in Algeria, which was manifested in the signing of the "Evian Accords".-----

A memorial which was needed after fifty four, especially this year 2016, because it coincides with the 60 years of independence of Algeria and Morocco.-----

President Hollande had planned this long commemoration, for he had the program in 2012, from the beginning of term, Carcel has had the time to say and recognize ... December 6, 2012 "I promulgated as President of the Republic March 19,

The fact whether François Hollande that marks this page of the history of France which often his predecessors had dismissed the question makes sense, because he himself lived in his youth in Algeria.-----

Algeria has therefore taken the most important place in this memorial day of March 19, because it is the North African country that has experienced colonization of longevity, with a hundred and thirty years, more than a century. This long recall period that Algerians were French during this stage of their history until independence.

Morocco and Tunisia, even if they were only a protectorate, were widely cited and benefit from a collective homage of the head of state by recalling the close relations of these countries "Friends" as a reminded the Chief of Army Hollande.-----

To this François Hollande received His Majesty King Mohamed V of Morocco, during the inauguration of the new IMA tribute Cultural Center "and the new Moroccan consulate Orly.

The Head of State then shook hands with many guests, settled in tents, many veterans and war survivors including a political journalist, Claude, himself a survivor of the war in Algeria

The weather luck that it has not rained during the ceremony, as often the rain is a frequent guest at many commemorations of Francois Hollande, including this symbolic day in 2012, his inauguration as President of the Republic during the official parade on the Champs Elysee.

It is now a memorial that was necessary being given the proximity to France with Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia after the belated recognition errors committed by France. The coincidence of timing brings a touch is both dramatic and sad, because the next day the ceremony of remembrance, has plunged another friend and very close countries, Belgium in the horror of the attacks.

The explosions of Zaventem airport and Brussels Maelbeek station, have killed 31 people and left three hundred wounded, were claimed by ISIS, which claim to kill in the name of Islam ... Recall that the "true Muslims" had protected France in enlisting in the army.-----

In all, nearly 235,000 Muslims fighting alongside the French soldiers, incorporated into the French army from 1956 to 1961. (According to the report the UN day of the cease-fire, according to March 19, 1962).-----

What also refresh the memory of uncultivated terrorist barbarism which serves neither perfect, neither country nor nation, nor even some proximity to the real Muslims, the heir peaceful followers of Islam of lights.-----
